SOUTHEAST UCC Conference

May 1, 2017

From the Conference Office

Moderator's Message

by J.R. Finney, Conference Moderator

I grew up hearing often an old saying that goes like this: "Don't let your good be the enemy of your better and your better, the enemy of your best." The idea is if we hold on to tightly to what we think is good, we often fail to let go of that good so that we can achieve our better or our best.

That old saying took on a new meaning for me as I prepared for Easter Sunday after reading the lectionary scriptures for Easter 2017. (Acts 10:34-43 and John 20:1-18).

In John 20, after Mary Magdalene realizes it is the Risen Jesus talking to her, she evidently goes to embrace her dear friend, Jesus. But Jesus rebuffs her saying in verse 17, "Don't hold on to me, for I haven't yet gone up to my Father." Why would Jesus do that to her? As I pondered that question, I began to let my mind wander. What if Jesus used this incident as a metaphor to teach Mary and us the lesson of that old saying of not "letting your good be the enemy of your better or your best."

Obviously, Mary was overjoyed to see that Jesus whom she loved was alive. However, maybe Jesus wanted her and us to realize that though He was alive, His resurrection means that things have changed. To experience the fullness of God in our lives, we can't hold on to the Jesus we knew before Good Friday. We must let go and embrace the wholeness of God in Christ that is only made possible by Christ's resurrection on Easter.

Are we holding on to the good of only a pre-Good Friday Jesus? If so, perhaps only in letting go as Peter did in Acts 10 while preaching at the Gentile Cornelius' home, will you be able to embrace all of who the Resurrected Christ is, and experienced God's better and best among us as the Southeastern Conference of the United Church of Christ.

We, as the Southeast Conference (UCC), are faced with some wonderful challenges for the future. Good practices of the past should be used as lessons to learned from, but they should never keep us from developing better or best practices we need to go forward and perform with excellence the ministry God has for us.

My hope and prayer is that we will learn all we can from the good practices of our past; but "never let our good be the enemy of our better and our better, the enemy of our best."

From the Interim Conference Minister

Dear Friends,

As I travel around the conference meeting you all, I am blown away by the amazing ministry we, in the Southeast Conference, do. This past Sunday I worshipped with Peace UCC in Clemson, SC. They are beginning a Tiny House Project. This project will provide a welcoming and safe haven to anyone who needs a short term place to live who has become homeless because of rejection. Their dream is to build "a house that is safe, sustainable, and mobile. When completed, it will provide a short-term 'Safe House' for an individual in the Upstate who has lost their housing due to rejection. Our dream is to bring together Clemson University students, members of the local community, and members of Peace Church, UCC. The Tiny House will also raise awareness of discrimination against LGBTQ+ people."

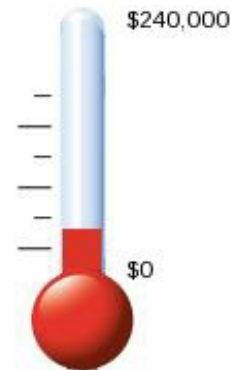

This ministry, and so many others, make our conference a vibrant and faithful community. So, please, invite me to come and visit your congregation, your community, your passion for ministry. God has blessed us deeply! May we share the blessings to inspire and connect us.

Blessings and peace,
Marie

Prayer Requests

- Our prayers are with the family of Rev. Allen B. Hollis, Jr., former pastor of the United Church of Huntsville, who died on Saturday, April 15. Allen was also pastor of two former SEC congregations: Langdale Congregational Christian Church in Valley, AL and First United Church in Nashville, TN. A full obituary may be found online here.

- Our prayers are with the family of David Buttrick, member of Brookmeade Congregational Church in Nashville and retired professor at Vanderbilt Divinity School (Homiletics), who died on Saturday, April 22. A prolific author, David wrote 19 books, including his landmark work Homiletics. He was a proud member of the United Church of Christ, citing its policies of inclusion and diversity. His obituary is online here.
- We rejoice with, and pray for, Andy Sidden as he retires from full-time ministry on June 1. He is pastor of Garden of Grace in Columbia, SC.
- Prayers for Marsha Brown as she prepares for her upcoming ecclesiastical council. Marsha is the first Southeast Conference PATHWAYS graduate to progress this far in the ordination process.

Conference Transitions

- Congratulations to Tim Garvin-Leighton, who was installed as chaplain at Piedmont College on Sunday, April 23, 2017.

Corrections and Clarifications

In the article entitled "Spring 2017 Conference Grants Awarded" of the April 15 edition of this newsletter, we inadvertently misspelled "Spelman College," we attributed Morehouse College as a university, and neglected to include the "U" in "HBCU." We apologize for the errors.
